THE FRESHMEN

During our first year at E.W. we Freshmen have had many rewarding experiences. Of course, our first few weeks spent away from home were very new and different, but as we settled down into the daily routine, we really began to feel that we were a part of school life.

Our class officers this year have been Gretchen Smith, Louisa Mattoon, and Sammy Morton, Presidents; Natalie Hubbard, Sally Harris, and Margaret Gray, Vice-Presidents; Danny Palmer, Pat Overly, and Sheila Carter, Secretary-Treasurers.

In sports, the Freshmen learned rules and techniques, as well as good sportsmanship. We all remember Fall Field Day for our victory over the Sophomores in soccer and for the combined victory of the Purples. Winter Field Day also stands out for us because of our "once in a lifetime" basketball win against the Sophomores.

Our dorm, third floor Kellas, echoed with such calls as "Does anyone have some food? I'm starved!" Perhaps our biggest thrill came on the day our beautiful radio-phonograph arrived.

During the year we produced four one-act plays. Every Freshman took a part in their production.

Altogether, our Freshman year at Emma Willard will always be remembered by us as one in which we made new friends, gained new knowledge, and learned to appreciate fully the experience of community living.

THE JUNIORS

Although being one hundred strong presented some difficulties at first, we Juniors have done much this year to prove the truth of the adage that there is strength in numbers. With the cooperation of each girl and the assistance of our advisors, the class was soon functioning as a team. The Very Important Purples realized just how important their leadership really was. The Purple team continued on its rampage, upsetting the Greens in a thrilling Fall Field Day. Our long-awaited Prom next claimed our attention. Finally, however, the last invitation has been answered but all too quickly the strains of Ralph Stuart's orchestra left E.W. A crowded term concluded with a Christmas party for our sister class.

Our strength sustained us through ... conferences, and television ... mention only a few of our winter ... which our talents were made evident in "Show Boat" and the popular French auction. Proving the bulwark for "A Mighty Fortress," we rounded out our winter program.

Spring term brought us renewed energy and joy through concerts, May Day, and ... Day. We are eagerly anticipating ...

Senior Song

The love and knowledge we have gained,
 Our friendships far and near;
 The hard-earned goals that we have won,
 The valued past that has been such fun,
 These mem'ries we hold dear.

Although we may in coming years
 Embark on something new,
 The lamp of truth and mem'ries gay
 Are yours, E.W.

The past few years have opened up
 A knowledge-widened door.
 And in the hearts of us who learn,
 An ever-kindled flame will burn.
 For Nineteen Fifty Four.

Words by Carol Heeks
 Music by Diane Tisher

THE LIGHT.....

A small class, it's true, but there's no denying that the FRESHMAN class that arrived in the Fall of 1950 was rather dynamic. We will never forget our first Troy leave, when the whole class took off—en masse. Neither will Troy forget it. Then the hurricane over Thanksgiving weekend resulted in the transformation of our beloved Hyphen House into a male dormitory for the Juniors' stranded dates. Next our hidden talents emerged with the production of four one-act plays. And the field trip to New York City proved quite enlightening for all concerned, even though that fascinating trick shop was not supposed to be included in the tour.

Castles, castles, and more castles. . . . As we SOPHOMORES plowed through Medieval History, we realized that there was more to school than just mischief-making. Pet rats and mice over in Weaver Hall absorbed a good deal of our time. In fact, since we could not bear to depart from them at vacation time, many E.W. Sophomores were seen carrying an odd assortment of tiny animals home. Our more undesirable talents were revealed on Hallowe'en, when we discovered that eggs and studying don't mix too well. Never will the Class of '54 forget that wonderful creation, the Nausea, which turned out to be the rage of the annual E.W. Fair.

.....of OUR PAST

Our class doubled JUNIOR year, as did our numerous responsibilities as leaders of the Green team and our proprietary feelings concerning Kellis. The Junior Prom brought to its end an eventful Fall term. Then before we knew it, we found ourselves immersed in the vocational testing program, surveys, and College Boards of the S.A.T. variety. Our creative minds produced a fantastic land "Behind the Iron Curtain" as the main feature of the Fair. Spring elections came and went, as we participated in Flame Ceremony, the approaching seniority was felt by all.

With mingled emotions, ninety-four enthusiastic SENIORS received the cherished rings at a dinner given in their honor in October. The traditional production of Christmas Revels climaxed the Fall Term. What a thrill it was to be guests at the Manor House! Soon Winter term, the Fair, and College Boards were a part of our past. Leisure time seemed nonexistent as the deadline for our source themes crept closer and closer. While preparing for the Senior Prom, the fact that we'd soon be alumnae became more believable. Our senior play and Class Day, both huge successes in our eyes, brought us two steps closer to that big day. On Saturday June 12, we left Sage Hall for the last time as seniors to receive our coveted diplomas. As last goodbyes were made, the past four years became a part of our most treasured memories.

CLASS POEM

BROADCASTS REAPED

Steps taken—thresholds passed
All minds upon the future bent
Each day briefer than the last
Each year's thoughts well spent.
Growing with hopes, we ninety-four
Search the broader road,
Journeymen of fifty-four
Reaping harvests sowed.

Compelled as to common goal,
Enjoying breathless time,
Each creating every role—
Leader, chorus, mime.
The earnings of the moment end,
We share our greedy store
And profit by the dividend,
The student—and the lore.
